Heighten safety at OC Transpo bus crash site: Watchdog

Concern. The Transportation Safety Board sent two letters to the city detailing potential hazards

LUCY SCHOLEY

There have been several reported incidents at an OC Transpo railway crossing in Barrhaven since the fatal collision last September and Ottawa must improve its safety standards, according to Canada's transportation safety watchdog.

The Transportation Safety Board (TSB) sent two letters to the city on Tuesday. The first describes how four buses drove through the transitway crossing east of the Fallowfield Station — the same station in which an OC Transpo bus collided with a via rail train — when the gates were up, but the train signal lights were flashing.

"With regards to these specific incidents and in consideration of public concern, the City of Ottawa may wish to put appropriate measures in place to ensure that buses are able to stop safely in advance of an activated railway crossing signal," the first letter reads.

The second letter details a case where the lights remained on after a train had passed, but only one of the two gates returned to an upright position. An OC Transpo supervisor arrived on scene and determined that the automated crossing system went into a "fail-safe mode."

hree buses we

through the crossing while the signal lights were still activated.

"Although the parties involved took reasonable steps to minimize the risk at the crossing and there were no adverse consequences, it would appear that there are opportunities to improve safety,"

The City of Ottawa responded to the letters in a memo stating that it plans to meet with the TSB and Via Rail about installing an amber early warning light on the transitway, reviewing speed reductions and reviewing the bylaw about how vehicles operate on the transitway.

An OC Transpo bus collided with a Via Rail train on Sept. 18, 2013. Six people died, five were seriously injured and 30 suffered minor injuries.

'I abhor violence,' Sher says

Terror trial. Defence argues emails were about fantasy hockey, not terrorism

Accused of conspiring to facilitate terrorist activity, Khurram Sher took the stand at the Ottawa Courthouse Tuesday to describe himself as a peaceful, enthusiastic member of a fantasy hockey league.

Under questioning from defence lawyer Michael Edelson, he explained that emails sent to friends between 2008 and 2010 were about fantasy hockey and ball hockey tournaments in Montreal and Toronto.

"I abhor violence," said Sher.
"I like ball hockey, fantasy hockey, soccer and giving back to the community."

Wearing a grey suit, the soft-spoken Sher claimed that he was so knowledgable about a fantasy hockey league that friends back home in Brossard on Montreal's south shore would ask him for advice on which NHL players to trade.

A native of Brossard, Quebec, Sher attended McGill's medical school, and in 2005, found residency in St. Thomas, Ont., outside London, where he, a devout Muslim and his wife, purchased a house.

Sher said his wife suffered from bipolar disorder and at one stage, started wearing a niqab until Sher asked her to stop. "People might see you and think we are terrorists," he told the court.

The couple divorced in 2010 and have three young children.

In 2005 after an earthquake devastated parts of northern Pakistan, Sher and three Muslim friends volunteered to provide medical assistance at field hospitals and women's shelters, the court heard. In addition, he was generous with his money, donating more than $10,000 to charities in 2010 alone.

Sher volunteered to do a second medical rotation, this time in Jerusalem, Israel and Karachi, Pakistan, in 2008. Edelson asked him about journal entries Sher made regarding monies owed to him while overseas.

"In case anything happened to me. It can be pretty dangerous there," he told the courtroom. "My worst-case scenario was the risk of being killed or illegally detained like the Canadian journalist in Egypt."

Sewer line to be repaired on Waller St.

A sewer line that was damaged following the collapse of Waller Street will be repaired this week.

Work is ongoing for the sinkhole that opened up directly above tunneling excavation work for the Light Rail Transit (LRT) system on Feb. 20. The hole has been filled in with concrete and now the Rideau Transit Group (RTG) is removing asphalt and repairing the damaged storm sewer infrastructure.

Work on the sewer line will start Wednesday and could continue overnight and into normal construction hours during the rest of the week. The sewer line is due to be reconnected Friday, at the earliest.

The eastbound curb lane on Laurier Avenue from Nicholas to Waller could be closed overnight on Wednesday from 6:30 p.m. to 6:30 a.m.

The sinkhole opened up five metres above the tunneling excavation. RTG said it's still investigating the cause of the road collapse and construction work for the LRT on Waller Street has been halted until the investigation is complete.

Water service and traffic lanes on Laurier have been restored since the sinkhole incident.

Senators look poised to stay the course as trade deadline looms

Could Milan Michalek be part of a blockbuster deal as the trade deadline approaches? TREVOR GREENWAY/MET

March 5. Young squad just two points out of a playoff spot as they make their final push

TREVOR GREENWAY

Ottawa Senators general manager Bryan Murray said it's "very possible" his hockey team could whiz by the March 5 NHL trade deadline without making any deals at all.

Murray told reporters Tuesday during a practice at the Robert Guertin Arena in Gatineau that he is confident his young team can make a playoff run.

"I like our hockey team and if we don't do anything, we are fine," he said.

"We have got some kids that have played really well down below and if it requires a call-up a little later on to fill a spot, we can do that."

With the Senators just two points away from the final wild card spot in the Eastern Conference, an upgrade could help the team make a final push to the post-season, but Murray isn't willing to shell out cash in such a high-demand market.

"There is only three or four teams that are really out," said Murray.
"With so many teams

fighting for a playoff spot, I would suggest that the price is a little higher than you might want to pay at the moment.

Murray wouldn't comment on specific players, but forward Milan Michalek admitted he is a bit nervous as the trade deadline approaches. Michalek isn't having his best season, with just 10 goals and 25 points in 59 games, but he hopes to be around long enough to help the Senators make a playoff run.

"If it happens, it happens, you are not going to do anything about it. I am just trying to do my best here. I like it here in Ottawa and obviously I want to stay."

The Sens are currently tied for 10th in the East with 63 points. They take on Detroit at the Canadian Tire Centre Thursday.

On the chopping block?

The Carleton Ravens men's hockey team is hoping their two mid-season tilts against Queen's University are an indicator of how their secondround playoff matchup will go.

Carleton beat Queen's twice in regular-season dustups one a close 3-2 win and the other a 4-1 stomping.

The two teams open their best-of-three series Wednesday night at the Ice House in Ottawa.

Raven's head coach Marty Johnston said that if his team wants to advance to the Ontario University Athletics championship, it will come down to the little things.

"There are so many one-goal games that we are really going to have to make sure that we pay attention to detail," he said.

An Ottawa sports enthusiast is trying to get people off their couches and onto sports pitches with a new web app that connects people with sports teams in their city.

The app, Full Roster, is mainly geared toward leagues, but anybody can use it anywhere in the world — for players to find leagues or vice-

"A player could put in their postal code and receive an email when a posting for a team comes up," said Full Roster creator Nicholas Van Zant.

Currently the focus is on hockey, and within the next month they hope to branch out to other sports like tennis and beach volleyball.

Van Zant and his partner Andre Munroe have teamed up with the Canadian Adult Recreational Hockey Association (CARHA) and Rockstar Energy Drinks for future promotional sporting events.

"We plan on having a pond hockey tournament next year," he added.

Full Roster intends to donate a portion of its profits to various charities to support recreational sports in the global community.

"We have an affinity for our community and we want to connect with it," said Van Zant.

"People these days are becoming more disconnected but we're becoming more connected to technology - it's odd," he said.

Full Roster is currently a web-based app, but Van Zant is working to make it mobile.

"We went on emotion, and chose only films that people will like, sophisticated but entertaining," Farre said of the 100 movies to screen at the Canadian Museum of History March 14 to 21.

The series opens with a gala screening of Quebec director Albert Dupontel's award-winning film Neuf Mois Ferme and continues with screenings of critically acclaimed films from Japan, Germany, Great Britain, the U.S., Belgium and Canada, including Xavier Dolan's Tom à la Ferme, Stefan Miljevic's Amsterdam and two films by the Quebec team of Denis Villeneuve and Jean-Marc Vallée: Prisonniers and Dallas Buyer's "Kids, francophones, anglophones, these are films for everybody. French films will be subtitled in English and English subtitled in French," Farre says emphatically.

The festival includes master film classes, a focus on Quebec film, and a tribute to one of the giants of Quebec's television industry, Marie-France Brière.

Trudeau says he's sorry for joke about Ukraine

Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau has apologized after facing heat for comments that lightheartedly linked the conflict in Ukraine with the Russian Olympic hockey defeat. SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

No laughing matter. Liberal leader apologizes for remark about Russian invasion as opponents look to capitalize on the gaffe

Justin Trudeau was back on Parliament Hill Tuesday to face the music for his joke about Ukraine, as the Conservatives and NDP pondered once again how to make the Liberal leader's latest gaffe stick.

Trudeau told the media he waited until Tuesday to apologize because he "wanted to make sure that I had the chance to express directly to leaders in the Ukrainian community ... how seriously the Liberal party takes the situation in Ukraine."

He added that his joke during a pre-taped appearance on a Radio-Canada current affairs program "made light of some very real fears and concerns that Ukrainians have about Russian intervention."

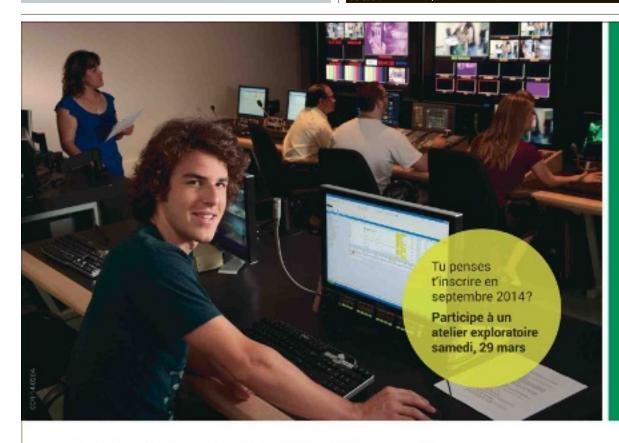

Trudeau apologized earlier in the day to the Ukrainian ambassador to Canada after making a quick visit to the embassy. Vadym Prystaiko, who had called for the apology a day earlier, praised Trudeau for being the first Canadian politician to sign a book of condolences.

Trudeau also tweeted that he'd made amends with Paul Grod, head of the Ukrainian Canadian Congress.

In an interview Thursday, Trudeau said Russia, peeved about being eliminated from the medal round in Olympic hockey, might vent its spleen by getting involved in Ukraine.

In the aftermath of Trudeau's comments, both the Conservatives and NDP pounced in an effort to inflict some damage. Trudeau is consistently ahead in publicopinion polls and wrapped up a successful policy convention in Montreal over the weekend.

Tensions soar in Crimea against Kyiv 'bandits'

'Russia, save us!'

Protesters in the pro-Russian region of Crimea aren't ready for the change in Ukraine's government

Dozens of pro-Russian protesters rallied Tuesday in the Ukrainian peninsula of Crimea against "the bandits" in Kyiv who are trying to form a new government — with some even speaking of secession. A lawmaker from Russia stoked their passions further by promising them that Russia will protect them.

As a Russian flag flew Tuesday in front of the city council building in Sevastopol — a key Crimean port where Russia's Black Sea Fleet is based — an armoured Russian personnel carrier and two trucks full of troops made a rare appearance on the streets of the city.

The Crimean Peninsula — a pro-Russian region about the size of Massachusetts or Belgium — is a tinder pot in the making.

Protesters had torn down the Ukrainian flag a day ago, pleading with Moscow to protect them from the new authorities in Ukraine who have forced President Viktor Yanukovych to flee Kyiv, the capital, and go into hiding.

"Bandits have come to power," said Vyacheslav Tokarev, a 39-year-old construction worker in Sevastopol. "I'm ready to take arms to fight the fascists who have seized power in Kyiv."

Yanukovych's whereabouts are unknown but he was last reportedly seen in the Crimea. Law enforcement agencies have issued an arrest warrant for Yanukovych over the killing of 82 people, mainly protesters, last week in the bloodiest violence in Ukraine's post-Soviet history.

Chanting "Russia, save us!" the protesters gathered for a third day before administrative buildings in Sevastopol and in other Crimean cities. The protests Sunday numbered in the thousands.

are asking to be helped."

Meanwhile, U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry said Monday's signing of the bill by President Yoweri Museveni marked "a tragic day for Uganda and for all who care about the cause of human rights."

He warned that Washington could cut aid to the East African nation over the new law, which punishes gay sex with up to life in prison.

Sectarian violence rages, breaking up families, making orphans of young children

Ibrahim Adamou's parents had just been killed in front of him. He wasn't sure whether any of his five siblings had survived the attack by Christian militiamen who opened fire on his family of herders as they journeyed on foot.

The seven-year-old just knew he had to keep run-

Covering 100 kilometres barefoot and alone, he slept under the thick cover of banana trees at night and followed the red rutted paths by day, not entirely sure where he was going, with nothing

Finally he encountered peacekeepers who gave him some cookies and pointed the way to Carnot, where a Catholic church was sheltering 800 Muslims, including many ethnic Peuls like Ibrahim. With the help of a Christian man on a motorcycle who risked his life by giving the boy a lift, Ibrahim arrived at the church early Monday.

"When we got to a checkpoint, the militia fighters told the man, 'Leave the boy here and we will kill him'," Ibrahim recounted softly. "But the man said, 'If you are going to kill him, you must kill me too' and then they let us pass."

What is even more remarkable about Ibrahim's story is that there are at least

When one orphan heard motorcycles on the road, he would hide in the woods. When the roads were empty, he just kept walking, asking anyone he could where he could find the peacekeepers who were guarding Muslims.

An elder shaved the heads of the orphans to indicate they are in mourning for their par-six other children under the age of 10 with a nearly identical story in Carnot. As violence rages against Muslims deep in the bush in the country's southwest, children appear to be, often, the only SULVIVORS. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fewer crazy names for Cuba's children

When Yanitse Garcia's firstborn came into the world, Garcia decided to save her daughter a lifetime of grief by choosing a simple name.

"What I liked about Olivia is precisely that it wouldn't be a bother for her," said Gar-

Garcia is part of Cuba's so-called Generation Y, the thousands upon thousands of islanders born during the Cold War whose parents turned tradition on its ear by giving them invented monikers inspired by Russian names like Yevgeny, Yuri or Yulia. The phenomenon was so prevalent that dissident writer Yoani Sanchez chose "Generation Y" as the title of her well-known blog; her counterpart on the cyberideological battlefield is a pro-government blogger and tweeter who uses the handle Yohandry Fontana.

More than two decades after the fall of the Iron Curtain, Cubans are increasingly returning to more traditional handles for their kids, saying they believe it will better suit them personally and professionally when they grow up. Decades ago many Cuban parents named their kids after other family members or saints.

While there's no public data available, experts have noted a trend away from Y-based and other eccentric names in recent years. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California couple find rare coins worth $10M in their own backyard

Most profitable dog walk. Quiet couple's buried treasure could be the largest such discovery in U.S. history

A California couple out walking their dog stumbled across a modern-day bonanza: $10 million in rare, mint-condition gold coins buried in the shadow of an old tree.

Nearly all of the 1,427 coins, dating from 1847 to 1894, are in uncirculated, mint condition, said David Hall, co-founder of Profesional Coin Grading Service of Santa Ana, which recently authenticated them.

Although the face value of the gold pieces only adds up to about $27,000, some of them are so rare that coin experts say they could fetch nearly $1 million apiece.

"I don't like to say oncein-a-lifetime for anything, but you don't get an opportunity to handle this kind of material, a treasure like this, ever," said veteran numismatist Don Kagin, who is representing the finders. "It's like they found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow."

Kagin would say little about the couple other than that they are husband and wife, are middle-aged and have lived for several years on the rural property where the coins were found. They have no idea who put them there, he said.

The pair are choosing to remain anonymous, Kagin said, in part to avoid a renewed gold rush to their property by modern-day prospectors armed with metal detectors.

They plan to put most of the coins up for sale through Amazon while holding onto a few keepsakes. They'll use the money to pay off bills and quietly donate to local charities, Kagin said.

London High Court. Judge frees IRA man, cites secret letter promising no arrest

An Irish Republican Army veteran charged with the IRA killing of four soldiers in London's Hyde Park in 1982 has been freed from custody after a judge ruled that the British government misled the man into thinking he could travel to England without fear of arrest.

London High Court Justice Nigel Sweeney found that Britain's Northern Ireland Office in 2007 provided John Downey with a confidential document promising him he was not wanted for any outstanding IRA crimes.

The judge said Northern Ireland police knew that their London counterparts still wanted to arrest Downey and soon recognized the mistake in the government's letter to Downey, but failed to tell anyone to retract the letter.

He said the document encouraged Downey, who lives in the Republic of Ireland, to fly through London's Gatwick Airport, where he was arrested last year and charged with murder and other terror

Secret promises

Tuesday's judgment revealed a secret practice by Britain's previous government to provide letters promising safe passage home for scores of IRA members who remained fugitives from British justice, living for decades mostly in the Irish Republic.

 Until now, the public had been led to believe that IRA fugitives from justice remained on the British wanted list.

London police used fingerprint and witness evidence to identify Downey as an IRA member involved in the Hyde Park blast, when a nail bomb in a parked car exploded as ceremonial mounted troops passed, mortally wounding four soldiers and seven horses.

Bitcoin traders brought to knees

Tokyo. Following news of Mt. Gox vanishing, the cybercurrency fell below $500 US, from a high of $1,200 US

One of the world's largest bitcoin exchanges has seemingly disappeared, delivering a severe blow to the virtual currency as it struggles to gain legitimacy.

A coalition of virtual currency companies said Tuesday that Tokyo-based Mt. Gox went under after secretly racking up catastrophic losses.

Mt. Gox's website was returning a blank page Tuesday. The disappearance of the site follows the resignation Sunday of Mt. Gox CEO Mark Karpeles from the board of the Bitcoin Foundation, a group seeking legitimacy for the exotic new form of money. The exchange had imposed a ban on withdrawals earlier this month.

Prominent supporters of bitcoin — including San Francisco-based wallet service Coin-base and Chinese exchange BTC China — sought to shore up confidence in the currency by saying Mt. Gox's collapse was an isolated case of mismanagement. They said it had abused users' trust, but did not "As with any new industry, there are certain bad actors that need to be weeded out, and that is what we are seeing today," the statement said.

Since its creation in 2009, bitcoin has become popular among tech enthusiasts, libertarians and adventurous investors because it allows people to make one-to-one transactions, buy goods and services and exchange money across borders without involving banks, credit card issuers or other third parties. Criminals like bitcoin for the same

In December, the value of a single bitcoin hit an all-time high of $1,200 US. In the aftermath of the Mt. Gox collapse Tuesday, one bitcoin stood at around $470 US.

'Being your own bank' can be risky

The head of the Bitcoin Alliance of Canada says the collapse of a major currency exchange in Japan, following months of secret catastrophic losses, serves as a warning to those who buy and trade in the popular digital currency.

Anthony Di Iorio, the executive director at the nonprofit organization, advises that the lesson to be learned is that large amounts of bitcoins should not be left on any exchange or service due to possible security risks.

The great thing about bitcoin is that you can be your own bank and nobody has access to your funds," he said Tuesday.

"But if you are putting them in an exchange, and you're buying and selling, you have to have them stored there at least for a small amount of time.'

The risk with leaving money languishing with a third-party is that if the site shuts down, the investment can be gone with it.

That appears to be what happened at the Tokyo-based Mt. Gox where it's estimated as many as 740,000 bitcoins are missing, roughly translating to hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of losses.

Some viewed the troubles with Mt. Gox as the beginning of the end for the popular digital currency.

Lisa Kramer, an associate finance professor in Toronto, said the shut down is not a surprise because Mt. Gox has been dealing with serious security issues for several months, including users recently being banned from making withdrawals. "Bitcoin has been operating in limbo for some time. The writing has been on the wall," said Kramer. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will spend millions of dollars to help farmers and ranchers improve pastures in five Midwestern states to provide food for struggling honeybees under a program to be announced Tuesday.

LET IT BE OR MAKE IT BETTER?

Thanks to sites like BuzzFeed, this is the Golden Age of Wasting Time.

And one of the best ways to waste time, wherever you are, whatever you're supposed to be doing, is the Identity Quiz.

You know? If you were a sandwich, what kind of sandwich would you be? Turns out I'm a ham sandwich, but you knew that.

As you launch your identity quest, be warned there are millions of these things. There are even millions of What Kind of Sandwich Am I? quizzes.

So we need a hook, and what better than this: It is the 50th anniversary of the English Invasion this month, starting with the night the Beatles appeared on the Ed Sullivan show and launched a rock revolution.

Of course, to celebrate the Fab Four moment, there's a quiz on BuzzFeed which allows you to find out which

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan

metronews.ca

Beatle you are: the Popular (if a little square) Paul, the Genius John, the Spiritual George, and the Affable (if a little goofy) Ringo.

Like all great time wasters, the quiz is fun to do. You start by choosing your favourite psychedelic pattern, and go from there.

The quiz wants to know if you'd rather sing "oo-bla-di-bla-da" or "beep beep yeah!"

It wants to know if you think you should take a sad song and make it better. Or let it be

The quiz asks you to choose your fave from a gallery of foxy '60s ladies (the Beatles and the boys of BuzzFeed are pre-feminist, apparently).

Finally it asks how you're feeling about love right now: All you need is love? Or can't buy me love? By now you've figured out that this quiz (except for the foxy ladies) is based on Beatles' lyrics.

So it helps, if like me, you've spent a lifetime trying to get Yellow Submarine out of your head.

But as the Beatles have sold more records, had more No. 1 hits, and have been covered by more artists than any group in history, it's a safe bet you know John, Paul, George and Ringo maybe better than you know yourself.

So now that you've rushed to BuzzFeed to take the quiz, welcome back. Who are you?

If you're me, you're a late-'60s version of John Lennon, which is not what I expected but it's better than being an '80s version of John Lennon.

And I'm kinda relieved I'm not Ringo. Although you'd have to argue that Ringo is certainly the luckiest Beatle. If he hadn't met John or Paul, he'd be driving a bus in Liverpool, like his dad.

And taking the quiz to find out what Beatle he would be: John, Paul, George, or ... Pete?

Neeson Taken with being Non-Stop man of action

Fighting Irish. Actor with serious chops embraces unexpected butt-kicking roles

IN FOCUS Richard Crouse scene@metronews.ca

Much of the fun of 2008's Taken was watching beloved thespian Liam Neeson go all Chuck Norris in a dirty little Euro trash thriller.

In the action-adventure movie, Neeson played a former "preventer" for the U.S. government. A specialist in black ops, he was an undercover agent who contained volatile situations before they got out of control. Retired, he lived in Los Angeles near his estranged 17-year-old daughter Kim (Maggie Grace). When she is kidnapped by a child slavery ring, he has only 96 hours to use his particular set of skills to get her back. His rescue mission takes him on a wild rampage through the soft underbelly of Paris. "I'll tear down the Eiffel Tower if I have to," he says.

It's a down-and-dirty little flick, classed up somewhat by the presence of Neeson in the lead role and it became an unexpected lightening-ina-bottle hit. It also redefined Neeson's recent career.

At an age when many actors are staring down the barrel of character parts and cameos, the 61-year-old has

Cast in the shame mould

"I was a tiny bit embarrassed by it [Taken], but then people started sending me action scripts."

made an unlikely U-turn into action movies. "I was a tiny bit embarrassed by it," he says of Taken, "but then people started sending me action scripts."

His latest actioner is Non-Stop, a high-flying thriller that takes place on an international crossing from New York to London. Neeson is an air marshal who must prevent a crazed killer from murdering passengers in flight.

Taken and Taken 2 (which were essentially the same movie) worked not just because the action sequences were out of control, but because audiences had some empathy for Neeson's character as he kicked butt across Europe. It was a personal mission: He was trying to get his daughter back.

Action movies like Wrath of the Titans, The Grey and Unknown may not burnish Neeson's rep as a great actor, but when asked why he keeps making these kinds of movies, he has a solid reason: "Because they're dumb enough to offer them to me!"

Wham! Bam!

Arguably best known for his Best Actor Oscar nomination as the charismatic but humble German businessman Oskar Schindler in Schindler's List, the Irish actor has fully embraced his new career path.

 Vanity Fair even acknowledged the twist in an article called, Wham!
 Bam! Thank You, Liam!

Beck's new album not just a Morning Phase

Beck Hansen really doesn't believe a musician has the right to complain. It's something of an occupational requirement.

"Nobody wants to hear it," he says. "That's not what we're here for. We're here to play music and have a good time."

So it may come as a surprise to many fans that Hansen suffered a spinal injury that kept him from making music in the usual ways for a significant portion of the last decade. He doesn't talk about it a lot and certainly doesn't want to dwell. He found other ways to create as a producer and songwriter during this period, but he will admit he feels a great sense of release now that he's putting out Morning Phase, just the second album he's completed and released in the last 10 years.

"I was just waiting until I felt like I was able to do what I used to do," the 43-year-old Hansen said. "It was a difficult experience, but in any kind of difficulty there are positives. And I think that's particularly what the record is about: How to come out of some sort of travail and difficulty and find some sense of light again and life continuing. Once you've seen some things that are darker and you know that darkness is there, how do you embrace the other side of life?"

Beck's embracing it with a period of great creativity and will soon return to the studio to record a second album he plans to release later this year. At times while injured he was unable to hold conventional instruments, turning to substitutes, like a hand-held keyboard to write and record. He's returned to live performance over the last few years and feels he's been transformed by the experience in ways he struggles to explain, as much metaphysical as physical.

"There's a point where a kind of pessimistic view can take hold and be a means of survival," Hansen said. "This record in some sense was grappling with that and taking a long hard look at everything and trying to find something redemptive."

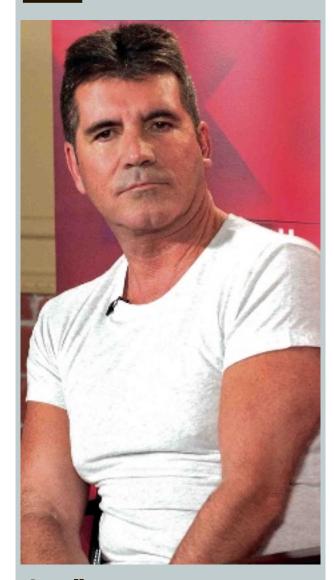

He's been left with a newfound sense of patience, he says, and the simple act of putting out an album brings him great joy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An island of one's own

Caribbean craving?

There are plenty of destinations to choose from in the warm southern seas here's a rundown of some of the best

BYERS byerstravel.com

It's still high season in the Caribbean. And high time you ventured south for a bit of sun and sand. But where to go? There's a Caribbean island for every kind of traveller, and the choices can be overwhelming. So here's a look at a few personal favourites that might fit your style.

For the swimmer-diver:

There's awesome swimming to be found off the coast of Negril, Jamaica. Down at Rick's Café, you can watch hugely talented local kids do wild, somersaulting dives off rocky cliffs into impossibly blue water. You can't get quite as high as they do, but there are places near the bar where you can do a perfect cannonball — or, more likely, a face plant — yourself. Small boats out of Negril often weigh anchor just offshore, allowing patrons to swim in some of the prettiest water the world has to offer. Alternative: Check out the cool bars and the swim scene at Orient Beach on St. Martin. It's clothing optional. But, like many places, some of the folks who doff their clothes are people who really should stay perched at the bar. In long pants. And a hoodie.

For the snorkel, scuba fan:

The U.S. Virgin Islands doesn't get the same attention from Canadians as some parts of the Caribbean. But there are glorious beaches to be found and wonderful water sports. At Trunk Bay on quiet St. John, which might be the prettiest beach on the planet, you can swim near offshore islands and follow an underwater trail. There's a similar trail near Buck Island, a short boat ride off St. Croix, where you'll also find a glistening white sand beach and hardly any people. Alternative: St. Lucia's Sugar Beach, nestled between the two giant rock pillars known as the Pitons, has one of the finest reefs in the Caribbean.

For the luxury lover:

Sandy Lane on the west coast of Barbados is a stunner. There are free-form pools, private villas, one of the Caribbean's top spas and sumptuous dining on offer. This area also is home to the wonderful Green Monkey golf course. Tiger Woods married Elin Nordegren here, not that that ended so well. Alternative: Amanyara is a quiet spot on a lovely stretch of sand in the Turks and Caicos, far from the crowds of Provo. Fabulous Asian-inspired food.

For the drinker:

What, you thought we forgot about bar hopping? One of the most famous imbibing spots on the planet is at Shirley Heights Lookout in Antigua, where they do a Sunday night extravaganza with plenty of cold beer, barbecue chicken and live music. Great sunsets and parties that last long into the night. It's also a stunning spot during daylight hours, with spectacular views of the island's green hills and perfect blue waters and boats bobbing in the bays below. Possibly the best vista in the Caribbean. Alternative: Sunshine's is a colourful, seaside bar on the west coast of Nevis, part of St. Kitts and Nevis. Try the local cocktail, the Killer Bee, and look for the photo of Wayne

This is a great muffin to make with the kids to show them how you can use the whole fruit. My kids always get a kick out of adding the pieces to the food processor, it's a whole new kind of fun in the

LASH FOOD

- 1. In a large bowl, whisk together flour, bran, baking powder, soda and cardamom: set aside.
- 2. Cut orange into quarters. Place in food processor bowl and pulse until finely chopped, almost pureed. Scrape down sides and add milk, orange juice, brown sugar, butter, egg and vanilla and puree until combined. Fold in chocolate.
- 3. Pour orange mixture over flour mixture and stir until combined. Divide batter among 12 lined or greased muffin cups. Bake in 400 F (200 C) oven for about 20 minutes or until they're golden brown and firm to the touch.

- Look for dark chocolate or bittersweet chocolate chips or pastilles in grocery or bulk food stores with the percentage of cocoa right on the label. The higher the number, the darker and deeper the flavour of the chocolate.
- Wrap muffins individually and freeze for up to two weeks. Thaw at room temperature or in the microwave.
- If you don't use whole wheat flour often, be sure to freeze it so it doesn't go rancid on you. Other whole grain flours should be stored the same way if they are not used frequently. The freezer is a great place to store your nuts and seeds as well. Let them come to room temperature before using.

Sing a song of workday success

Whistle while you work. Seven jams that will tune up your ability to take on your job

ELIAS DA SILVA-POWELL

Every now and then you may find it difficult to bring the necessary quantity of pep and verve to your workday.

Whether your sub-par performance stems from illness or indulgence, you'll probably find yourself turning to music to get back into the swing of things — after coffee, of course.

While everyone has different musical tastes, this work-related group of songs should help you get through your day as smoothly as possible.

8:00 a.m.

9 To 5 - Dolly Parton

"Tumble outta bed / And stumble to the kitchen / Pour myself a cup of ambition"

Even if the title of Dolly Parton's gold single doesn't coincide with your work schedule, this hit from 1980 will help you kick-start your day. As an added bonus, this song will instantly make any commute feel like a montage — doubly so on public transit.

9:01 a.m.

Manic Monday – The Bangles

"It's just another manic

Monday / I wish it was Sunday / 'Cause that's my funday / My I don't-haveto-run-day"

You may be one of the unhappy people who dread Monday as the start of the workweek.

This pop staple, written by Prince, of all people, tells the story of someone who knows exactly how you feel. This one is best enjoyed as background music while you settle down at your desk and plan your day.

Enjoy the increasingly creative attempts to rhyme with Monday.

Like the average workday, this song can be a little repetitive at times, but it's also uplifting.

In Rundgren's self-defeating hedonism, you'll find a gentle reminder that you can't have fun all the time, or fun would lose its meaning.

There's a 50 per cent chance the chorus will get stuck in your head. You've been warned.

This song's lyrics do an excellent job reminding you that all the responsibility is on your shoulders, while reinforcing that there's always a light at the end of the tunnel.

Get ready to power through the afternoon.

Get Up Offa That Thing – James Brown

(Every other line in this song is "get up offa that thing." It's topical.)

There's a good chance your job or job hunt has you sitting in front of a computer for hours at a time, which isn't good for your health. At the risk of being rude and overly familiar, that thing you're sitting on? Get up off of it. Seriously.

I'm not allowed to dance without warning my co-workers in advance, but even I danced while writing about this song.

4:52 p.m.

Working Man – Rush

"(Extended instrumental break with your best vocal impression of a guitar solo)"

My understanding of Rush fans is that they rarely need a reason to listen to more Rush, so I only need to sell this to the rest of you.

For your own safety, I wouldn't recommend listening to this while you're typing.

Save this electrifying number for packing up at the end of the day — don't resist the urge to drum on the stacks of paper surrounding you.

Rest is over, bring on the rest of the season

THE HOCKEY NEWS Murray Pam ottawa@metronews ca

The bell has rung and recess is over for the Ottawa Senators. When play resumes this week, the club finds itself one point out of a playoff spot with 23 games remaining. The Senators sit in a group of 10 teams separated by nine points. Only half of these contenders will have their post-season tickets punched.

There are several factors favouring the Senators in their quest:

Post-Olympic blahs — Many clubs are worried about an Olympic hangover. Not the Senators. With only Erik Karlsson and Milan Michalek playing in the Games, the team had the fewest participants of any Eastern Conference team in Sochi. The break gave players plenty of time to recharge their batteries while two Senators, Cory Conacher and Bobby Ryan, proposed to their long-time girlfriends.

With a majority of the roster intact, a full week of practice is beneficial due to few off-days in what's left of a condensed schedule. MacLean will monitor Karlsson's icetime Thursday, but the silver medallist should be raring to go with four games in seven nights the following week.

Marching to the finish — The Senators first game off the hop is versus the Red Wings, whom they trail by a point. With nine players in Sochi, (see: Olympic hangover) and playing the second game of a back-to-back, the Red Wings should be easy pickings. However, ex-captain Daniel Alfredsson, in what is likely his last visit to CTC, may have something to say about that.

The Senators play 11 of their final 18 games on homeice following next week's four-game Western Canada sojourn, which includes Sunday's Heritage Classic at BC Place. The team is 5-1-1 in their friendly confines since Christmas.

In terms of remaining opponents, according to playoffstatus.com the Senators have the second-lightest schedule among the teams fighting for five berths. Bear in mind, the Canadiens, Capitals and Maple Leafs haven't yet travelled to California.

Knock on wood — As opposed to last season, the Senators are injury-free. Among contending teams, the Blue Jackets lost stalwart defender Fedor Tyutin, the Rangers are missing key scorer Mats Zuccarello, while the Wings lost Henrik Zetterberg for the season with a herniated disc.

General manager Bryan Murray is also continuing his search for a bona fide scorer. If Murray plucks a top-six forward prior to the March 5 trade deadline, the Senators playoff chances rise exponentially. MLB

Area arm Bedard given shot with Tampa Bay Rays

Navan's Erik Bedard is excited about the prospect of helping the Tampa Bay Rays get back to the playoffs.

The 34-year-old lefthander signed a minor league contract on the eve of the start of spring training and is being given an opportunity to compete for a job as the team's No. 5 starter.

Bedard struggled the past two seasons, going 11-26 with a combined 4.78 ERA for the Pittsburgh Pirates and Houston Astros. The Rays will decide over the next few weeks if he's capable of filling in for the injured Jeremy Hellickson, who's expected to miss the first six to eight weeks of the season after undergoing elbow surgery.

Sochi Olympics

TV ratings down from 2010 Games

The Olympic motto may be "faster, higher, stronger" but it doesn't apply to the Canadian TV ratings for the Sochi Winter Games.

As expected — given the time difference and lack of home-field advantage — TV viewership in Canada was down from four years ago when Vancouver hosted the Winter Games.

Daily average audiences exceeded four million viewers many days during the CTV consortium's Vancouver coverage. CBC had days during these Games where the average TV audience hovered closer to 1.5 million. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NHL. Tavares doesn't regret playing in Sochi

John Tavares' opinion on NHL players participating in the Olympic Games hasn't changed even though his New York Islanders' season ended on the other side of the world while he was wearing the colours of Canada.

"It's obviously a tough situation," the injured Islanders captain said Tuesday following his return from the Sochi Games. "I certainly love playing for my country, and if I got the call again, I would."

Following a relatively quiet off-season, Blue Jays GM Alex Anthopoulos appears content to gamble that with better health, the group of players who won just 74 games a year ago will do better this year. But while the roster is familiar, several jobs remain up for grabs. Here's a look at five of the most contentious competitions.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Drew Hutchison pitched to a 3.32 ERA in 21.2 innings recently in the Arizona Fall

Fifth starter

Frontrunner: Drew Hutchison Contenders: Esmil Rogers, Todd Redmond, Dustin McGowan, Kyle Drabek, Ricky Romero, Marcus Stroman

You can pencil in the first four spots of the Jays' rotation with R.A. Dickey, Brandon Morrow, Mark Buehrle and J.A. Happ, but the last spot remains unclear and could potentially stay that way through most of the season. Anthopoulos has raved about Hutchison, who has missed most of the last two seasons, since watching him perform in the Arizona Fall League. Stroman, the Jays' most polished pitching prospect, is expected to make his big-league debut at some point this season.

Blue Jays roles up for grabs

Second base

Frontrunner: Ryan Goins Contenders: Maicer Izturis, Chris Getz, Munenori Kawasaki

Aside from starting pitching, the Jays' most glaring weakness last season was at second base, where Izturis and Emilio Bonifacio combined to be among the league's worst offensive and defensive players at the position. Goins, a shortstop throughout his minor-league career, made his big-league debut in August and immediately impressed with his glove.

But like a lot of young players, he struggled at the plate, posting a paltry .264 on-base percentage in 34 games.

> GM Alex Anthopoulos sought to acquire a more established second baseman this off-season, but as it stands the job remains Rvan Goins' to lose.

Frontrunner: Moises Sierra Contenders: Anthony Gose, Kevin Pillar Anthony Gose has the greatest potential of all the organization's young outfield prospects, but he has yet to show he can hit consistently in the big leagues. He also can be optioned to the minors without clearing waivers. Sierra, meanwhile, is out of options. He's also right-handed (Gose is a lefty) and is currently the club's best option to platoon with the left-handed designated hitter, Adam Lind, who struggles to hit left-handed pitching. Sierra doesn't have near the upside of Gose, but he may be a better fit for the Jays' bench.

Moises Sierra batted .290 in 35 games with the Javs last season.

Backup catcher

Frontrunner: Erik Kratz Contenders: Josh Thole

Prior to camp opening it looked as if the incumbent Thole had the inside track to continue as R.A. Dickey's personal knuckleball catcher. But in the early stages of spring training it has been Kratz — acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies for reliever Brad Lincoln - that has caught most of Dickey's practice sessions. The Jays

Subaru's WRX appeal

Review. Who says sport cars need to have two doors and must be parked for the winter?

MALCOLM GUNN

wheelbasemedia.com

Compact sedans appeal to a buyer's practical nature. But in the WRX's case, the appeal includes a lively powerplant, four-season driving competency plus sporty suspension and steering components that effectively manage the snakiest of paved and unpaved roadways.

Subaru has made a name for itself providing all-wheel-drive family transportation, but that's just part of the story. Its more competitive side includes the rear-wheel drive BRZ sports car and a couple of turbo-charged WRX-branded models with rally-racing pedigrees that makes performance fans salivate.

The 2015 WRX that arrives this spring receives the all-new treatment, but in the process sheds its hatchback option. That's a bit surprising since hot hatches are seemingly all the rage, but since its major competitor, the Mitsubishi Evolution, is strictly sedan-only, Subaru appears to have concluded that a matching sedan is the way to fly.

The WRX has also jettisoned its Impreza tie-in. Henceforth the WRX and the more potent WRX STI offshoot that arrives in updated form later this year will be treated as stand-alone models. While not as eye-catching as the WRX Concept that was revealed at the 2013 New York Auto Show, the production version adopts the cleaner lines of the Impreza, especially from the windshield forward.

Overall, the WRX gains an inch between the front and rear wheels and rear-seat legroom is up by two inches. Additionally, wider-opening rear doors allow easier access to the split-folding rear seat, while trunk space has been modestly increased.

Subaru has done a great job with the WRX's interior accommodations. There's a meaty flat-bottom tilt and telescopic steering wheel that fronts dual gauge pods. They're separated by a small display screen with gear selection, oil and washer-fluid indicators. A larger dashmounted screen is linked to the standard backup camera and displays turbocharger boost and traction and climate control info.

It's connected to a new sixspeed manual transmission (a replacement for the previous five-speed gearbox), while a continuously variable unit (CVT) with paddle shifters is available. This option might surprise WRX fans, but the real surprise is how it mimics a traditional multi-speed automatic. The CVT has six built-in steps when the driver switches to either Intelligent or Sport

Design

The bulging front and rear fenders, recessed hoodmounted air intake and optional rear spoiler (subtle when compared to the STI's massive wing) remain in evidence, but the whole package now appears better integrated with the rest of the body.

Engine

For 2015, a turbocharged 2.0-litre four-cylinder engine similar to that used in the Subaru Forester produces 268 horsepower and 258 poundfeet of torque. That compares to the previous WRX's 265/244 numbers.

Honda Civic Si sedan Base price: $27,900

Ford Focus ST Base price: $31,700

mode from a steering-wheelmounted switch. There are eight ratios when the Sport Sharp mode is selected.

The WRX's chassis is now 41 per cent stiffer, with front and rear springs and a front antiroll bar that have been similarly beefed-up. Larger-diameter front disc brakes also provide greater stopping power. The standard all-wheel-drive has a torque split of 50:50, front to rear, for manual-transmission cars and a 45:55 for CVT versions. Depending on traction, up to 100 per cent of the power can be directed to either axle.

For an estimated base price of $34,500, the WRX comes with lots of gear, but moving up to the Sport Package adds a sunroof, trunk spoiler, LED headlights and an eight-way power driver's seat. The loaded WRX Sport-tech Package includes all of the above content plus keyless push-button start, touch-screen navigation and a 440-watt Harmon Kardon audio system.

The more sophisticated WRX continues on its path of refinement, backed by enough power and agility to keep all aboard amused and secure. What more could you want in a four-season sports car?

Throw your leg over and try The Motorcycle Show

Sit on all the bikes.

Except for the ultra fast and ultra rare models, visitors can fake twowheeled thrills on any models in the exhibit.

PILOT

Not much motorcycling going on Canadian roads this winter, unless you're one of those hardy souls who ride year-round with no sense in your head and lots of long underwear swaddling your nether regions.

But there is lots of motorcycle action to be had indoors, such as in The Motorcycle Show (operated by Power Sport Services) crossing the country this winter. This past weekend the show touched down at Toronto's Direct Energy Centre, a newish venue, bigger and better than in previous bike shows, even though the hot dogs and pizza slices still cost eight bucks or so.

I love motorcycle shows almost more than automotive shows, mostly because of this fact: cars have adjustable seats and steering wheels and motorcycles don't. Consequently, motorcycles have to fit your body type and your preferred riding position before you could even consider anything else about it ... And the only way to determine a good fit is to throw a leg over the bike and sit on it. A motorcycle show lets you do that over and over again, even if you're not in the market for anything and just doing it for curiosity sake. Way more entertaining than trying on jeans for example, and also less claustrophobic.

Of course there are always bikes on a show floor you can't sit on, because they're super special in some

I'm glad they don't make 'em like they used to

Driving Force. Yes, classic cars can be timeless and beautiful but don't forget how lucky we are that the automobile evolved ... no more crank starts!

MCINTOSH

You've probably heard someone say, "They don't make 'em like that anymore," when comparing old cars to new ones. But while cars certainly have changed, that's not really a bad thing.

"You can be nostalgic, but there were all sorts of compromises," says Richard Pickering, retired producer of the Signature Classics Collection at the Canadian International Auto Show in Toronto. "Everything today, for all practical purposes, is better than it was back then.'

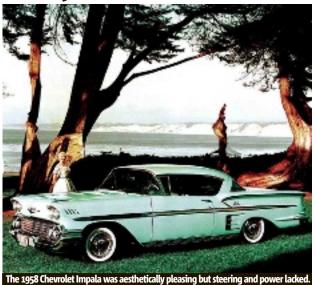

automobile's progress has always been an evolution, from cars that initially had to be cranked to start, to engines today that fire up almost instantly, thanks to computerized ignitions and fuel injection. Improvements in cooling systems have all but eliminated the overheated vehicles on the side of the road that used to be the norm in hot weather, while flat tires have become relatively rare due to better construction and rubber compounds.

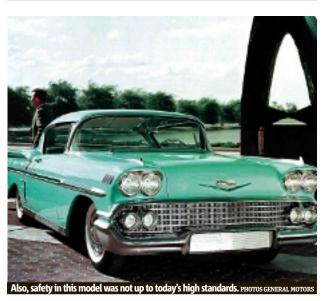

Engines have also become far more efficient. In 1958, the first year of the Chevrolet Impala, you could order one with a 8-cylinder engine that made 250 horsepower, with fuel consumption of about 23 litres per 100 kilometres. A 2014 İmpala gets 305 hp out of its V6 engine, and it's rated at 9.2 l/100 km. The new model also steers and handles better, has far better brakes, and considerably less body

However, it's also pricier: when the 1958's price is converted to 2014 dollars, the new Impala costs about $12,000 more.

Perhaps the change over the years has been in safety.

"Most people didn't have seatbelts, let alone use them," Pickering says. "You just had a bit of padding on the dash, a deep-dish steering wheel, and a collapsible steering column to keep it from being a spear."

In addition to anti-lock brakes, stability control and airbags, newer cars also have crumple zones, introduced by Mercedes-Benz in 1959. Some people complain that new cars fold up in a collision, unlike older cars that stay rigid, but it's a design that has helped to consistently lower the crash fatality rate, even though there are more cars on the road.

As a modern car's body progressively crumples, it absorbs and dissipates the crash energy. In older vehicles, the rigid body transferred that force to the occupants, slamming them into the interior compon-

Old cars had a certain style, although the annual design changes on American cars meant there wasn't always time to get the fit-and-finish right. "The ex-

- Short warranties. While some vehicles have a warranty for as long as five years or 100,000 km today, a typical 1940s warranty lasted only 90 days or 6,500 km.
- False advertising. Most old cars didn't actually make as much power as was advertised, due to the test standards at the time.
- First self-starter. The first gasoline car with a selfstarter, which eliminated cranking the engine, was the 1912 Cadillac.

cessive use of chrome, the tail fins, catches our eyes today," Pickering says. "But what do I drive every day? It isn't a vintage car."

Horoscopes

M Aries

March 21 - April 20

You may be anxious to see progress but if you take a risk too many, you could take a rather big step in the wrong direction. If you do, there is no point rebuking yourself. It happens sometimes.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You seem to be putting off something you know you will enjoy. Whatever the reason, you need to get started on it soon. Don't worry that there may be an element of risk.

II Gemini May 22 - June 21

Everyone at some time or another wishes they could go back and undo what they have done. With that in mind, don't be too hard on yourself if you realize you could have done more or done better.

9 Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Even the experts get it wrong and if your hunches tell you that someone in a position of influence does not know what they are talking about, then by all means ignore any advice they give you.

$\Omega$ Leo July 24 - Aug. 23

Be careful you don't get swept and end up doing things you might later regret. It's rarely a good idea to follow the herd and someone with your enquiring mind has no need to let others think for them.

W Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Today

Patience is a must today because if you act impulsively you will lose out. You may be frustrated that something you are working on isn't progressing as quickly as you would like but what's the rush?

△ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

It would be nice if you could solve all the world's problems, but be realistic: You can't come close. What you can do is join with those who share your views and aim to change one specific thing for the better.

M Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

There is a danger that what you say over the next 24 hours will be taken the wrong way and used against you in the future. Misunderstandings can be costly, so spell out what you mean in plain language.

7¹ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

If you need help, speak up. You have helped others out so many times in the past that they will go out of their way to help you in return, but they can't do that unless they know you are hurting.
